

Click Here

Map of martinsburg pa

World Time Clock and TimeZones Map USA Time Clock Pennsylvania map Blair County map Martinsburg on Google Map Martinsburg Neighborhood Map. Where is Martinsburg, Pennsylvania? Explore this interactive map to find essential information such as food, hotels, and tourist destinations. The street map provides a comprehensive overview of the city's essentials, while the satellite view offers a precise image of locations. View nearby locations: Roaring Spring, Claysburg, Saxton, Hollidaysburg, Loysburg. Download the PDF version of the Martinsburg, PA map for offline access. Directions are also available to plan your trip. Narrow down your search by selecting specific categories like restaurants or hotels. Recommended hotels and restaurants offer convenient options. With our search box, you can find other places that interest you. Copyright © 2005 - 2025 24TimeZones.com. All rights reserved. Martinsburg is a city in Blair County, Pennsylvania, with a population of 1,858 as of 2020. The city was established in 1814 and has a population density of 3,108 people per km². Location: 40°18'40"N 78°19'27"W (40.3111900, -78.3241800). Martinsburg is a city located in Blair County, Pennsylvania, with a population of approximately 17,514 people. From 2015 to 2019, the median selected monthly owner costs for housing units were around $1,104, while the median gross rent was $744. The demographics of Martinsburg include: * A percentage of foreign-born people: 2.7% * A rate of owner-occupied housing units: 49.8% * Median household income: $50,094 * Income per capita: $28,664 * Poverty rate: 16.6% Educationally, the city has a high school graduation rate of around 94.7% and a bachelor's degree or higher attainment rate of around 22.2%. The labor force participation rates are: * Total civilian labor force: 73.1% * Female labor force participation: 66.6% Economically, the city saw: * Total sales of lodging and food services in 2012: $10,347 * Total receipts/revenue for health care and social assistance in 2012: $19,567 * Total retail sales in 2012: $29,910 The city also has a strong small business presence, with: * Total number of businesses in 2012: 799 * Men-owned businesses: 344 * Women-owned businesses: 324 * Minority-owned businesses: 79 * Veteran-owned businesses: 41 Finally, the text lists several other populated places and cities within Blair County, Pennsylvania. Martinsburg is a small borough in Blair County, Pennsylvania, with a population of approximately 1,874 people as of the 2020 census. The community was named after John Martin, a pioneering citizen. The borough has a total area of 0.6 square miles and is part of the Altoona, PA Metropolitan Statistical Area. The history of Martinsburg dates back to 1815, when it was settled. It became incorporated in 1832. According to the US Census Bureau, the population density is relatively high at 3,904 people per square mile. Demographically, the borough has a predominantly white population with a small Native American and Asian presence. The racial makeup of the community is also notable for its low Hispanic or Latino population. The borough's housing units are spread out across the area, with an average household size of 2.19 people. The age distribution of the population shows that there are a significant number of young children, while older residents make up about 20% of the total population. In terms of economic and geographical information, Martinsburg is part of Blair County and has a small-town feel. The borough's proximity to other major cities in Pennsylvania, such as Harrisburg and Pittsburgh, makes it an attractive location for those looking to move to the area. Overall, Martinsburg is a small but vibrant community with a rich history and a diverse population. The population of Martinsburg, Pennsylvania was approximately 2,236 as of the 2000 census. The median age in the borough was 46 years, with a significant proportion of the population falling within the 45 to 64 age range. The demographic breakdown revealed that for every 100 females, there were 77.9 males, and for those aged 18 and over, this ratio increased to 69.7 males per 100 females. In terms of income, the median household income in Martinsburg was $27,125, with a median family income of $36,797. Males had a significantly lower median income of $25,096 compared to females at $19,226. The per capita income for the borough was $14,678, indicating that approximately 10.6% of families and 13.2% of the population lived below the poverty line. The data also showed that certain segments of the population were disproportionately affected by poverty, with 20.7% of those under the age of 18 living below the poverty line, compared to 7.9% of those aged 65 or over.

Martinsburg map. Map of martin.